

Emma Carr

I have been a parent governor at Woodfield for two years. My children have now moved on to high school and I wanted to continue to support the school and its pupils. I work in the energy sector, with a career spanning over 25 years. My qualifications and background are in law, procurement, contracts, commercial and business development.

Prior to becoming a governor, I had no previous educational experience but believe my commercial skills are transferable and benefit for Woodfield, especially given the current cost of living crisis and rising costs. I have lived in Redditch for 20 years I want to give back to the community.

Outside work, parenting and being a governor; I enjoy walking, paddle boarding, spending time in Wales and cuddling with my three cats.
